Squalor Amid Which Miners Are Forced To Live Is Told

THUGS FOLLOW NEWS WRITER THROUGH AREA

Children Barefoot, Half Clothed in Harlan Section

NEW YORK (INS)—I came to the Kentucky mountains from

Pineville, thirty-eight miles away, where I stayed in the same solitary little hotel that proved so unfortunate for Mr. Dreiser.

The mining valleys run almost to the town of Harlan itself; once you start to go through them you are hemmed in, bound to follow the trail of mines and return the way you came.

The true mining camps are nightmarish places.

Blight On Hillsides

They are like a blight on the hillsides. Clusters of shacks and wastes of refuse. Most of them lie lifeless in the misery of hopelesness and habitual dirt.

Each shack is the size of a good sized room, and it is divided up to various sections. There is one chimney and the walls and roof are of wood. There is no plaster or other protection against the weather and cold.

There is no running water in any of these shacks, and the toilet facility there is none inside the house, and the back yards of nearly all of them are an indistinguishable mass of filth, broken glass, bicycle tires, tin cans, broken plugs.

Filth Is Described

The filth of everything is beyond description. A pitiful number of children were barefoot and abysmal.

Putting Turner, Findley And Fletcher on the Spot

To you gentlemen, the farmers are asking—"Will you put your name to the answer to the following questions, and permit the press of America to carry the story?"

This question is asked of you for the reason that your unfair tactics, humiliation, and fear practiced towards the farmers of Iowa, has forced the public to demand the truth regarding the arrests you have ordered, the reluctance you have practiced in answering questions for the public and the farmers of Iowa.

Question 1: Do you feel that you have accomplished a half million dollars worth of good for the people of Iowa, or has the entire affair merely terminated in injustices created by organized groups who wish to prey upon the farmer and rob him of his property?

Question 2: Have you demanded that the State officials examine or test the Tuberculin used on

Iowa cows or merely taking somebody's word for it that it is pure, if so, is it not liable to be very impure, the same as impure serums have killed thousands of children in vaccination?

Question 3: Isn't it true that

Tuberculin caused strychny milk unfit for the public to drink, and isn't it true that many farmers had to throw their milk away because it became too strychny, while others in madness, being forced to drink it, have died?

Question 4: Isn't it true that your forced testing, has caused

CLOTHING WILL BE GIVEN OUT TO NEEDY HERE

Bureau to Be Opened In Y. M. C. A.; Men To Cut Timber

Measures of relief outlined today by the Citizens' Emergency Employment committee, included plans for the establishment of a public clothing bureau where clothing will be given out to needy men, and wood cutting by unemployed men that will provide both wages and fuel where it is needed.

The clothing bureau, which was originally planned to be established in the 200 block on East Second street, will be opened on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building on Iowa avenue, due to the fact that the second street building has been leased. The Y. M. C. A. has donated the use of the room during the unemployment crisis.

The committee has appealed to the public to donate all kinds of men's, women's and children's clothing, including underwear, bedding, curtain draperies, and yard goods that has not been made up. Articles that are not suitable to be worn will be made over by women selected from the unemployed list, and those who are in dire need of help.

The work will be done under the supervision of the Baptist Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. C. G. Flah is president.

The committee asks that the clothing be taken to the Y. M. C. A. store room on Saturday, Nov. 28. Anyone having clothing, and who is unable to take it to the Y. M. C. A., may call the Welfare association office, telephone No. 1208, and Boy Scouts will be sent out to collect the articles and deliver them to the bureau. An appeal is being made to the public to donate six sewing machines or the use of them, together with cutting shears and an electric iron which will be necessary to carry on the repair work at the bureau.

A quantity of axes, cross-saws, cut saws, wedges and nails are needed, and the committee has asked that any donations of this description will be gratefully received.

MILK TESTING NEARING ENDS

Case Against Local Dealer Is Under Advisement

Hearing of testimony in the case of the city against H. B. McDowell, local dairyman, charged with handling milk of a bacterial content not conforming with the city ordinances, was concluded Tuesday afternoon before Justice of the Peace H. D. Horst. The court announced that he would take the case under advisement as the matter, which is apparently a test case, involved certain technicalities which require a certain amount of time and study.

Two witnesses were put on the stand by the prosecution, which was in charge of City Attorney C. F. Fishburn, and Attorney C. F. Hanley, who represented Mr. McDowell. Ida A. Koehler, city laboratory technician, who took slides of the milk content, testified to finding a bacterial content of 351,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter, while City Attorney Fishburn contended the ordinance reads that the tests shall not show over 150,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter, which collects the milk for the city, was also a witness.

Witnesses for the defense were Miss Thelma Yount, technician at the Baker hospital, and Mr. McDowell. The defense contended that if the tests did show the high bacterial content as alleged, it was in the milk before McDowell got possession of the supply.

CHINA PREPARES FOR HARD FIGHT

Japan Aims to Drive Chinese Soldiers From Manchuria

By EDWARD HUNTER.
CHINCHOW, Manchuria.—(INS)—The remnants of Marshal Chang Hsueh-ang's Manchurian army are making hurried preparations today for the expected offensive by the Japanese whose reported aim is to drive the last Chinese soldier south of the great wall.

With Japanese detachments reported approaching from the region of Mukden Chinese soldiers are hastily throwing up trenches along the railway outside Chinchow. Cavalry patrols are active outside the city and Chinchow itself is thronged with soldiers.

Similar scenes can be observed in villages nearby.

General Yang Cheng, however, told International News Service that instead of the army of 100,000 to 200,000 men the Japanese claim he possesses in this vicinity he actually has "below thirty thousand men."

Assisting General Yang Cheng in the defense preparations is General Mi Ching-ling, who was director of the Mukden arsenal when the Japanese occupied the city and fled to Chinchow.

Military leaders admit the chance of retreating successfully a general Japanese attack is very slight but they intend to do their best. The Chinese garrison appears to be composed mostly of schoolboys whereas the Japanese are well-trained and equipped.

KNOXVILLE—(Special)—Charges of bootlegging against Henry Derringer, crippled world war hero, were dismissed Tuesday afternoon by Judge H. L. Boylan upon agreement with County Attorney Harold Clements.

George Burt, Derringer's companion, pleaded guilty of possessing four ounces of alcohol and was fined $100 and costs. The fine was remitted.

With the first day of winter weather, Derringer was shivering as he hobbled into court Tuesday morning to defend himself, clad only in a shirt, overalls and an ordinary coat.

He wore no underclothing, he admitted. He had accompanied his two children to school, walking nearly two miles.

12 Years Ago—A Hero
Twelve years ago Derringer returned here a hero, having been wounded 12 times and being decorated four times by three governments for heroism under fire.

He rented a small farm near here and was doing nicely until his health broke down.

Virtually Destitute
That was seven years ago. Since that time he and his family have been virtually destitute.

The local American Legion post has aided Derringer to the fullest extent of its financial capability, but difficulties in establishing his case with the veterans' bureau have kept Derringer in poverty.

Evening Dress Different Than In Former Years

By ALICE LANGGELIER

PARIS.—(INS)—Evening gowns this season will be dramatically different from those worn during the past few years. The war is certainly over and gone. Simplicity may be the rule for daytime, but have your finger dark seems to be what the French dressmakers are saying.

Satin in plain and broadened weaves, the new angel skin and brocades in the heavy Persian version are making many evening gowns that are decidedly different. Others come in lovely and chifon laces, not to mention the new velvets, the sheenless and pile varieties and many others.

Vionnet is showing shaded evening dresses that are dark at the top and almost white at the skirt hem. Lanvin does something of the same sort by adding a contrasting coat which makes a graceful covering of the arms. One in black dull crepe has the top in chiffon embroidered all over in fine silver paillettes. The back is almost wholly of the silver and there is also a touch of it on the fabric belt.

Dangerously dramatic, to say nothing of different, is an angel skin satin with trailing lower flounce painted with grey and silver designs of ostrich plumes. It may be draped up and clipped on to the waistline at the back when not wanted.

Cranberry sauce can be used for tarts, pastry rolls or for filling in a 2-crust pie.

The time allotted for the roasting of a turkey per pound is from 15 to 20 minutes, and a chicken per pound, 15 minutes.

used with equal smartness for country sports wear and formal town wear. You know, I'm sure, how often it is being used to line coats—for it is short-haired and supple enough to make the close fitting linings necessary to those of us who must maintain slenderness. And then, it's used to form the upper body half of town coats, bloused slightly, and very often with cloth sleeves on which intricate leopard cuffs are posed. For the very latest idea is to make all sorts of leopard skin accessories—bags, scarf collars and even a narrow belt to wear with an evening frock, and any number of brimmed and brimless wear hats!

THE mode of jersey, especially brown jersey, for smart daytime wear, is amply justified in many cases by the use of trimming and smart details. Molynex, for instance, used brown jersey, unrelieved by any other color, to fashion the daytime dress I illustrate today. But, as you can see, it's far from prosaic with its sleeves cut in one piece with the unusual, diagonal shoulder yoke, its high neck, closing with a single button, and the inverted pleats in the sleeves, which flare out fanwise into unexpected cuff treatments!

AND like much of the smart apparel of the season, the back view tells a different, but quite as interesting, story as the front! The diagonal shoulder yoke, for instance, forms a deep point in the back, the sleeves have zigzag incrustations, and the hip is molded by these same zigzags—three on one side and six on the other, just by way of being different!

A PLAIN brown jersey frock without distinguishing touches would be dull—with them, a stunning creation!

CHAPTER XVI

"Sue," came swiftly, "if I can only do what you say—work here and be the assistant equestrian director next year, or the worst paid canvas man on the lot, I'll be the happiest person in the world. It isn't the job—it's just to be here, with you—and Uncle Dan and everybody," he finished lamely.

A bugle interrupted the call to the dressing tent. Sue looked with surprise at her wrist watch and was gone. Joe Barry could find no joy in the news which she had brought him.

To dress in riding clothes and to appear in "straight-face" before the audience each day; this was tantamount to putting himself on exhibition every "down cop" in the audience might unconsciously watch and study him. Suppose a picture had been fixed in their minds, from long poring over re-circulated? A certain hopelessness came over him.

But nothing happened, when, the next day, Joe Barry took his new job at the races. It was not work in which he could move about, he must stay at the bell in the guise of a starter, changing the song for the start and for the halfway and the mid ringing of the finish. But nothing happened.

One day Uncle Dan came blustering down the hippodrome track and called to Joe as he passed.

"Got that thing arranged for this afternoon," he shouted over a shoulder. "See me right after performance. They're out here now in an automobile."

"What thing?" Joe called after him. But just then the chariot came rumbling into the arena and the answer was lost. Joe cut through the ring and across the intervening stage to the pad room. Half the circus seemed gathered there about an automobile from which men were lugging electrical devices. A six-horse team swung into view, and behind it a mixed case of lions and tigers, with Cathouse Green, the menagerie boss.

"Where you want these cats to do their mewing?" he shouted to a man in the automobile.

"Right there! We can move the microphone over beside the cage."

Microphone! He understood now without Uncle Dan's explanation; that radio idea, discussed one day weeks ago and then apparently forgotten.

"Better go get your accorcion, Joe," Uncle Dan shouted from the crowd about the automobile. "Everything's about ready. Tell Sue to hurry up. She's got to talk to her radio audience and tell 'em how glad she is everybody likes her act." He looked at his watch. "We've only got three minutes more. Get a move on yourself!"

Joe Barry thought desperately. The radio, sending his music to thousands upon thousands of listeners, music which might be recognized!

"Didn't I tell you to hurry?" he shouted Uncle Dan. "What's the matter? Scared of the microphone? It won't bite you."

A broadcaster hurried forward and caught Joe lightly by the upper mallow in center of each. Fold over and bake.

arm to give him his distance, according to the pantomimic commands of the man at the control. Joe Barry moved forward, amid a blur of faces. His tongue went swiftly over lips that had become suddenly hard and dry. Then slowly, to the guidance of the man beside him, he stepped to the microphone.

But again, nothing happened, except that the night crowd was a turnaway as a result of the broadcast. After the matinee, Joe waited in Clown alley, for the visit of men he felt sure must soon arrive. A whole twenty-four hours had elapsed. Now he saw how poor had been his selection of a pseudonym; a child could tell, he upbraided himself, that it had been changed from Barry to Bradley. But still nothing happened.

The show went on, rounding out of Virginia now and cutting back north, through the smaller industrial cities. Joe realized that he was not the only man in the world who could play an accorcion and that beyond that, police were not looking for hangar-murders as sinners of circus love songs. Once more the world was becoming rosete, the glow of sun flooding the clouds before a storm.

It was at the end of a matinee, and the flying act was done. The liberty horse race number waited at the flags. Joe stepped to the gong—only to find himself staring for an instant instead of signaling for the start. Some one who sat in the second row of the grandstand seemed strangely familiar.

Scattered emotions struck Joe Barry. Some one was there whom he knew, and he could know only those who must injure him. He changed the bell for the smaller industrial cities. # As We See It

More About the Sales Tax

Yesterday in this space we warned the people against the sales tax, showing that it originated as a big business measure designed to head off a return of the super tax and sur-tax on giant incomes. We showed that the sales tax is a tax on consumption and shifts the tax burden from the shoulders of the rich to the backs of the poor and results in higher prices and an increased cost of living.

The subject is of utmost importance to all citizens. We are therefore going to present some new and startling facts today.

Some of these startling facts are brought out in newspaper accounts of the unofficial and unauthorized "investigation" now being conducted in Canada by some 65 U. S. Senators and Representatives.

George W. Jones, of Canada's department of revenue and one of the originators and most ardent champions of the scheme, told the American "investigators" some facts that completely let the cat out of the bag. He brought out the fact that the Canadian sales tax was introduced to save the rich from the effects of a graduated income tax. He said:

"It might be asked, why did Canada decide to try out this form of sales tax when it had already in operation an income tax? The income tax has its limitations: It is good in its way, but necessarily there is a point beyond which you cannot tax capital without running the risk of doing grave harm to the economic stability of the country."

This is identically the same argument that American big business magnates are now using in their drive for the sales tax here. It is utterly fallacious. The entire trouble with our whole capitalist system is not that there is too little capital, but that there is an overproduction and surplus of capital seeking investment but unable to find profitable investment because the field is already covered. The capital that is already working is producing more goods than the underpaid wage earners and farmers can buy. There are periodical accumulations and market gluts, and that is what causes periodical depressions.

We have depression, not because capital becomes scarce, but because capital becomes so plentiful that part of it cannot find profitable investment. These idle dollars unable to find investment produce idle men seeking work. Any intelligent business man knows that these are facts. The argument that the graduated income tax creates a scarcity of capital and, hence, slows down production is a shameless manifestation of capitalistic hypocrisy.

This huge and growing capital surplus is a most menacing thing. It grabs and monopolizes the profitable stock and bond market shutting out the people; it seizes and appropriates to itself government or public non-taxable bonds; it overflows into all possible domestic opportunities, thus shutting the common people off from opportunity. It is now overflowing into American agriculture and crowding out the family farms with giant corporation farms. It has overflowed the boundaries of the United States into almost all countries of the world to the extent of twenty-five billion dollars, and still the overflow continues. Its foreign investments is the direct and chief cause of modern militarism and war. It causes war and then takes a mortgage on the world to pay for the war it causes, thus enchainning the unborn generations of man.

The essential virtue of the graduated income tax, the super tax on giant incomes, the sur-tax and the inheritance tax is that they tend to curb this monstrous and dangerous capital surplus which is corrupting and possessing governments and mortgaging humanity. It reduces this danger and then uses the proceeds to build up our national and public life. There couldn't be a more just or beneficial tax than the graduated income tax.

After a great deal of dodging, Mr. Jones was pinned down by our unofficial "investigators" and admitted that the sales tax passes the tax on to the consumer in the form of higher prices or an increased cost of living. After Jones had explained that in Canada the sales tax is applied only to sales made by the manufacturers, he was asked by Howard, Democrat, of Nebraska, if the manufacturer adds the tax to the price of his products. While Jones' answer was devious, it was an unmistakable admission that such was the fact. He said:

"As a rule that is so. The manufacturer is made responsible for the tax and has the privilege of including it in his selling price or as a separate item on his invoice. So he is really paying to the government that which he has received himself."

This is a sufficient admission for a typical political hypocrite. Just as though under modern monopolistic or competitive conditions the manufacturer could in any way avoid passing the tax on in the increased price of the goods! In all cases where taxes on sales are imposed the tax goes on the ledger as one of the expense items. The manufacturer figures his profits over and above all expenses—he puts on a price that will cover all expenses and leave him a satisfactory profit. The fact that, although the 17,000 Canadian manufacturers pay all the sales tax, they make as big profits and prosper as much as manufacturers on this side of the line, is absolute and irrefutable proof that they pass the sales tax on to the consumer. The present gasoline tax in America is added openly to the sales price. The former war tax on theater tickets was added to the price of the tickets. There can't be a sales tax under the present system unless it is added to the price of goods and the cost of living.

The originator and chief exponent of the present sales tax drive is Senator Reed of Pennsylvania. This ought to damn the whole scheme in the eyes of fair-minded citizens. Senator Reed is well known as the chief spokesman for big business in the Senate. He stands openly and shamelessly for every vicious measure desired by the great monopolists. He says concerning the proposed sales tax:

"I am in favor of a sales tax of one-half of one per cent on everything. I would include every commodity. I favor it not as an emergency addition, but as a permanent addition to the tax laws. It would bring into the treasury almost half of the expenses of the federal government—not less than $2,000,000,000 a year."

This statement by Senator Reed expresses exactly the scheme of American big business. Their proposed sales tax will produce just enough to cover the present two billion dollar deficit, and as it comes from the sweat and blood of the poor people of America, it will save our super rich millionaires and billionaires from the dreaded restoration of the super tax and sur-tax on immense incomes. This will immediately swell the great and mounting capital surplus, which in turn will flow into all lines of business and endeavor not yet trustified, and the complete corruption, trustification and enslavement of America will quickly follow.

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Less taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

The Evening Story

TURKEY FOR TWO

By Elma Knotts

The lobby of the Blechley apartment hotel had the usual morning-of-a-holiday deserted air as Cecile stepped from the elevator, stung by the cold, and dashed little green hat which contrasted entrancingly with the golden waves exposed to view. "If any one calls up for me," pausing at the door, she said, "I've gone to Willow Creek for the day."

"Willow Creek? What luck—that's where I'm going, too!" enthusiastically exclaimed a voice that seemed to have started from the depths of a near-by chair, but was now evidently right beside her. Her heart skipped a beat. She knew, without looking up, that the owner of the voice was tall, had an infectious smile and that there was something about him that always left her a bit flustered.

"Riding out on the bus?" he pursued hopefully. "Fine. So am I. My car's laid up. We've just time to make that 11:16."

They made it, and almost immediately they were in Willow Creek, although, strangely, their watches showed that two hours and eleven minutes had actually elapsed. In the very moment of alighting a sudden flutter of panic assailed her. Her kind people in this tiny village. Oh, dear, what if—

"I'll take you to your friends first," he offered, "before I—"

"Oh, no please don't bother," she nervously swallowed. "You see, I'm supposed to—to be alone, and it might seem—"

"All right," he gave in cheerfully. "But how about us meeting here later and taking the bus back together?" Well, that would be all right. Cecile hurried toward the south end of the town, while headed north.

She soon doubled back and came to the quaint, rambling, old two-story structure that called itself a hotel, entering it through a side door that led into the dining room. A rich warm aroma of coffee and savory cooking greeted her. There was—miracle of miracles!—a real fireplace, with a real log blazing in it.

A smiling, round-faced waitress led her to a window table, just as the stout proprietor was deferentially conducting a tall young man toward the same spot. Cecile and the young man stopped short, and stared. He recovered first. "Well, anyway, let's sit down." Then, "weren't your friends home?" he asked concernedly.

"I haven't any friends here," flushing, "I used to pass this funny old hotel on the bus last summer going to and from Lake Tonking. Somebody told me they served good meals, and I hit upon the idea of eating dinner here today. Every one but myself seemed to be going away for Thanksgiving, or having company, or had some plan or other. Even Betty, who shares the apartment with me, went home and I just couldn't bear the thought of eating Thanksgiving dinner alone in the city, either at home or at a restaurant."

"I know," he nodded understandingly. "I was rather dreadfully alone myself, having to spend it alone, when I heard you say you were going to Willow Creek, and instantly I knew I wanted to go, too. I haven't any here, either," he confessed shamelessly. "I just hoped we might have the ride together and then I'd manage to pick up a dinner somewhere." He smiled into her eyes. "So here we are."

From the radio came the fascinating lit of a Viennese waltz, the flames in the fireplace snapped merrily. She felt suddenly gay and unburdened.

The turkey was young and tender, the yams carried to a delicious crunchiness, the two-inch home-made pumpkin pie, with its crispy crust and huge mound of yellow whipped cream, was an ambrosial perfection. They lingered at the quiet table long after they were finished.

At last he glanced at the ancient clock ticking gravely on the wall. "I suppose," he regretfully, "we'll have to tear ourselves away. But there will be things to do in the city this evening to round out our Thanksgiving day. Do you think our Willow Creek friends would mind very much?" his eyes twinkling. "If we took the next bus back instead of that later one we planned to?"

Cecile gave a little laugh. And another. When one has had a wonderful dinner—and not alone—and one is feeling tremendously happy, it is so easy to laugh at almost anything!

LEARN TO KNOW THE RIGHT WORD

By W. C. Nicholson

JUST A REPETITION

(Find the error in this article.)

It was just a repetition, the use of the pronoun "I" in the seventh sentence of the Fall Test. Before we take up the problem involved, let us look at yesterday's error, which was found in the following sentence: "There are a lot of people who seem to think that 'him' should be used on all occasions."

Do not use "lot" for "good many." Say, "There are a good many people who seem, etc."

Now let us take up our problem of repetition. In grammar, we call it apposition. In other words, an idea expressed by one word is again conveyed by another. Often the word that is in apposition is placed next the original word; as, John, my brother, helped me with this problem.

In the seventh sentence of the test, "Whom did you think it to be, my brother or the last word?"

is in apposition with the first word "whom." But, you ask, how can this be possible? "Whom" is in the objective case, and "I" is in the nominative. You look at it again, and probably think there is no doubt but that one or the other of these words should be changed in form. Surely, if a word is in apposition, it is just a repetition of another word, it should be in the same case as that of the first. So your only question is whether "whom" should remain "whom," or be changed to "who." Well, "whom" is correct, and therefore "I" should be changed to "me" to agree with it in case. The reason that "whom" is correct will be discussed in an early installment of "The Right Word."

DANNY'S SECOND ADVENTURE

Perhaps you can imagine how Danny Meadow Mouse felt when he discovered the roof of Miner the Mole's tunnel right under that pile of brush Old Man Coyote was scattering so fast to catch him. All his fears, all his worries left him just the way water runs off the coat of Jerry Muskrat. Just one little minute before he had been in despair because it looked to be almost certain that this time there was no way for him to keep out of Old Man Coyote's stomach, and now he actually was chuckling as he began to dig in the soft earth on the roof of Miner's tunnel. That is the way with Danny. He passed through the most of the other little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest, the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool; as soon as a danger is past they forget it. That is, they don't think about it. They remember the lesson one may have taught them, but that is all.

It is well that it is so. If they kept thinking about their escape and the dangers they have passed through they wouldn't have time to think of anything else and there wouldn't be any happiness at all for them. So they promptly put such things out of their minds. It was so with Danny now.

It didn't take long to dig a hole big enough to squeeze through and with a happy little sigh Danny dropped down into that tunnel. Now he had nothing to fear from Old Man Coyote, so he sat down near the little hole he had made and listened. He heard Old Man Coyote scatter the last of the sticks that he had thrown and then he heard him run this way and that way sniffing and sniffing as he tried to find where Danny had gone. He knew just how surprised and puzzled and disappointed Old Man Coyote was and he laughed until he had to hold his sides. When Old Man Coyote finally gave up and went away Danny poked his funny little head out of the hole he had made and watched him out of sight.

"Now," said Danny as Old Man Coyote disappeared, "what shall I do next? I want to go on, but this is strange country to me and I might not be lucky enough to find a safe hiding-place if that old miner should take it into his head to come back this way. I suppose I can stay right here until I'm sure that he isn't coming back, but that will be a terrible waste of time. Ha, ha! Ho, ho! I have it! I'll travel under ground for a while. This tunnel of Miner's seems to run in the direction I want to go, so I'll just see if for a subway for my travels." You know subway means a way under ground.

I'll just follow the tunnel as far as it goes and then, if I can't find out unless I happen to find one of Miner's doorways at the end. I hope Miner isn't using this tunnel just now. It would be very unpleasant to meet him. He is such a short-tempered fellow. But I won't worry about that until I have to. I never did believe in borrowing trouble.

You see Danny is something of a true philosopher, which means he is one who believes in making the best of things as they are, and not worrying about things which may never be. So he ducked down and began to trot along the tunnel of Miner the Mole. He felt quite at home there, for it wasn't the first time he had made use of one of Miner's tunnels. In fact he had often used old tunnels which Miner no longer used himself. But this wasn't an old tunnel; it was a new one. Miner himself might come along any minute. So Danny kept his ears open for any suspicious sounds. By and by he came to a place where another tunnel branched off. He hesitated a minute, then kept straight on. He had gone but a little way when he heard a sound behind him which made him stop to listen. Some one was coming behind him! It was Miner the Mole! He must have come out of that other tunnel just after Danny had passed it. Danny didn't wait a second. He took to his heels and ran with all his might. Behind him he could hear Miner and he knew by the sound that Miner was in a terrible rage. He had discovered that some one was in his tunnel. With all his might Danny hoped that there was an opening at the end of that tunnel, for if he had to stop to dig

People's Pulpit

People's Pulpit: Dear Editor:—

My opinion is that the bovine T. B. test law is a lot of graft, just a big money making scheme. Why can't we farmers "rig" up some scheme and make millions, just because we are "down" and "broke"? I guess. Why we should be treated so is more than we can understand and we're the most honest and straight industry God has put in this country. Let some of these white collared "big bugs" go out in a common every day corn field and huck corn every day from 4 o'clock in the morning till 7 in the evening and after getting home do all the chores customary on a farm. Then eat a supper after which you're so "dog tired" it's all we can do but drag to bed. Wouldn't our "million dollar softies" make a "holier" Yes I should say so. We can holler too, but I should good. Then even after all the hard

Good Health Club

"THE PROSTATE GLAND"

Again we are dealing with a gland which belongs to the endless chain of the endocrine glandular system.

The prostate gland is about the size of a horse chestnut and is located in the pelvic cavity above the rectum, and below, and adjacent to, the urinary bladder. Running through the center of this gland is the prostatic urethra, through which must pass all the wastes from the kidneys and bladder.

It can be seen that any congestion of this gland is going to choke the neck of the bladder and cause a retention of the urine with the result that there never is a complete emptying of the bladder at any time and a certain amount of fluid is left in the bladder; a breeding ground for millions of bacteria.

Commonest Disease

Enlargement (hypertrophy) of the gland is the most common trouble. Complications which are quite persistent are stones in the prostate, inflammation, and cancer. The enlargement of the gland is toward the rectum, there will probably be constipation also. Sex decline and interference with the passage of urine will be noticed. Incontinence and difficulty in starting the flow of urine, especially after exposure, may result.

There will be a reflex to the small of the back, which feels ached, and is often diagnosed as a kidney condition. Headaches, gestic disturbances, intermittent pains; depression, neurosthenia and a lack of will-power and concentration. Every case will, of course, have all of these symptoms, while other cases will have different symptoms.

Men who suffer from enlargement of the prostate gland are usually worse in the winter time. These men lose sleep and vitality because their rest is broken. They have to get up nights and in severe cases, it happens every hour or two.

It may sound strange to say that high blood pressure is intimately associated with prostatic enlargement. Nevertheless it can be plainly shown. The gland enlarges, the neck of the bladder is choked off, a certain amount of urine remains in the bladder to spoil. The inflammation creeps up the tubes to the kidneys; so also do the millions of bacteria which has developed in the stale urine. Then we get a disturbed kidney function. Infection with the various types of nephritis. Any dysfunction of the kidneys with congestion or contraction will throw a burden upon the heart and arteries.

It has only been recently that the prostate gland has had the attention that it deserves. Many cases diagnosed as kidney and urinary diseases have no doubt been his way out Miner surely would catch him and that would be the end of him.

Give It a Thought

By Joseph A. Sadony

Show me what has made more heroes
Than faith in God.
That has defied and conquered more deaths
With a smile.

Show me what has caused more progress, loyalty and human perfection
Than the blind faith
Compared to the open eyes of science
Or all the education recorded by man.

Compare the faith of the greatest warrior on earth
With that of a child in its mother's arms on a sinking ship.
Listening to the crooning of a broken heart.
Go back into history
And behold the smiles of faith in the eyes of the martyrs
Condemned to death.
Excel that, if you think you have anything better.

Then, should there be no immortality.
At least you can be assured that you possess it in your faith.

Why wait until you are sure a great man is dead
Before you chisel his name upon the granite slab?
Why not let him see it there.
He may perhaps give you a new masterpiece.

Or a broken picture of a hypocrite. Thereby saving the coming generation Useless labor from the former.
And wasteful correction by the latter.

It is easier to erase his name, if unworthy.
Than to bring him back to help us, if worthy.

What possibilities can you release by your influence.
Or what mighty dam can you destroy by the release of a few pints of water.

Shove-ball on its mountain top?
There must be discipline in your life.
What is yours?

To the father of twins life seems but a span.
A firm name sometimes indicates business infirmity.

GENERAL MA
("One of the best equipped Chinese armies is directed by Gen. Ma."
—News Item.)

I.
Through the fields a Chinese army grimly rolls along to war.
Seemingly it's fierce and savage
And bloodthirsty to the core;
Hard-polled soldiers most impulsive
They appear to be, but bah!
Ev'ry move they make is governed
By the orders from their Ma!

II.
Tramp-tramp-tramp they move to battle.
In their eyes a bitter threat;
And you picture them with horror
Driving home the bayonet;
"Reckless, bold, intrepid fighters,"
They are called, but it is blash—
For they never load a pistol
Till they're ordered to by Ma!

III.
On the army plods intently,
With a dust cloud in its wake,
Eager for the scent of battle,
And to die for China's sake;
Fighters desperate and daring—
So they seem—on war intent,
Bosh! They never lift a finger
Without getting Ma's consent!

IV.
Hardy warriors and bitter,
They know how to kill and maul,
And they glory most in scrapping
When their backs are to the wall;
But they never shoot a foe man
Without first exclaiming: "Ah—
If I say this guy I wonder
Will it be all right with Ma?"

V.
When the shells explode about them
And the foemen make attack
They are savage in their fury,
But they cannot fight them back,
For it's known throughout the army
That they mustn't do a thing till
Ma has told them that they can!

VI.
Discipline is all important,
As most any fighter knows
And a soldier must take orders
As through each campaign he goes,
Which is why this Chinese army
Is a model one, tra-la!
For it never starts the shelling
Till it runs and asks its Ma.

VII.
Thus at nighttime in the trenches
With the big engagement near

There's a silence weirdly broken
By a cry that all can hear;
When the roar of battle opens,
And the guns go cha-cha-cha—
All the whole darned Chinese army
Calls appealing, "Oh, Ma!"

COLUMBUS JUNCTION FAVORED OVER LITTLE MUSKIES

St. Mary's Basketeers Will Open Conference Season Tonight

LOCAL TEAM WILL BATTLE OTTUMWA IN LOOP CONTEST

Visiting St. Mary's Squad Reputed to Be Strong Team

With only two practice periods being held since the first game of the season against the St. Mathias team of Muscatine, the local St. Mary's basketeers will have to do a lot of hustling and play at top speed all the way to defeat the strong St. Mary's team of Ottumwa in the opening Southeastern Iowa league contest of the season at the St. Mary's floor tonight.

The visitors boast one of the strongest Catholic teams in this part of the state and will be out tonight to mark up their first loop victory. However, Coach Paul Kent of the locals has been drilling his team hard the past two days on defensive and offensive work and believes he has found the combination that will go far toward stopping the visitors.

Four Iowa Gridders Considered by Team For Leader in 1932

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—Four University of Iowa football players were being considered today by their teammates for the position of 1932 captain, to be named after the annual banquet given by President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup Dec. 2.

The four men who are veterans of two years of varsity play and who have earned the respect of their teammates are: Earl Latta, center; Ed Dolly of Rock Island, Ill., center; and Alex Rogers of Florence, Miss., tackle.

FORMER HI STARS OF MUSCATINE ON DOWNEY QUINTET

John Downey Sponsors Another Cage Team This Season

John Downey, owner of the Boosters Cafe and Cab Co., has just completed the organization of another basketball team and believes he has one that will stop some of the best independent teams in the state. The team, usually, has been called Downey's Boosters.

Among some of the players are Jim Figg, coach, Buck McIntyre, Walter TeStrake and Ray Tucker, all of the state championship high school team of Muscatine in 1927. But Fabianus and Bernard Hahn, members of last year's powerful Little Musk machine, and Whitey Ray and Bud Flak.

The team has been practicing every Wednesday night for the last several weeks at the Y. M. C. A. and will hold another drill at the "Y" gym tonight. The team will enter in one of the three Y. M. C. A. leagues, which are now being organized and besides league play, will meet some of the outstanding teams in this vicinity.

Manager Downey and Coach Figg have received letters from various teams in this section and have also sent out many letters asking for games.

Strong Teams Write

Among some of the teams which have written for games with the Boosters are the Service Rubber Co. team of Rock Island, the Moline Grays, 188th Hospital Corps of Iowa City and Cedar Rapids, and the team of the Y. M. C. A. Blackmere, Clyde Van Dusen, Morty Dozer, and O'Connor. Van Dusen can be remembered by many local fans when he played in the tournament here two years ago. Kozar was with Iowa University last winter while O'Connor was all-state guard with Newton when that team won the high school state championship in 1928.

However, no definite dates for any games have been set as yet as the management is waiting for the announcement of the exact day for the opening of the Y. M. C. A. leagues. A. J. Lindley at the "Y" announced that play will start either the first or second week in December. He has yet to separate the some 23 teams entered into the various leagues.

FOOTBALL BAN IS CONTINUED

Loyola Not to Have Grid Eleven for Another Year

CHICAGO—(INS)—Suspension of intercollegiate football by Loyola University will be continued for another year, it was announced today by Father Robert M. Kelley, S. J., president of the college. The announcement followed a canvass of the faculty whose members voted to keep football off next fall's athletic program because of the success of the plan this year.

Loyola is the first and only major college in the country to try the experiment of suspending intercollegiate football.

A survey of the results thus far, according to Father Kelley, has shown a growth of intramural sports giving a better percentage of students the benefits of athletic participation, a tendency to improve the general scholastic standing and abolition of a financial strain on the student treasury.

Enrollment at the university this fall, Father Kelley reported, was larger by 100 students than last fall's registration, indicating that intercollegiate football does not necessarily attract new students.

HARD WORK

HOLIDAY TILTS HOLD INTEREST

Grid Fans Offered Best in Football on Thanksgiving

NEW YORK—(INS)—Thanksgiving day, the day when many of the country's gridiron leaders sing their annual swan songs, offers the football fan tomorrow a varied program, studied with several of the outstanding pigskin clashes of the season.

Penn-Cornell, as usual, is the big game in the east on turkey day, Pitt-Nebraska, N. Y. U.—Carnegie Tech, Colgate-Brown and Holy Cross-Boston college, however, will provide the spectators along the Atlantic seaboard with just as many thrills, even though they haven't the tradition behind them that this thirty-eighth meeting of the Ithacans and the Quakers carries with it.

Down south Tennessee, one of the three unbeaten and untied eleven in the country will put its winning streak in serious jeopardy when it tackles Kentucky at Knoxville, and Alabama-Vanderbilt at Nashville also promises lots of spectacular action.

Three other traditional battles down below the Mason-Dixie line feature Auburn and South Carolina in their annual clash at Columbia, S. C.; Virginia and North Carolina at Chapel Hill's beautiful stadium, and V. P. I. and V. M. I. in Virginia's outstanding game, at Roanoke.

The coast has two games, one of which brings together two of the country's headlines. That's the St. Mary's-Oregon battle slated for next Saturday at Astoria. C. L. A. is the other coast tilt.

FOOTBALL BAN RINGSIDE SEATS ARE UNDER FIRE

May Abolish Their Use At Wrestling Bouts In Chicago Arena

CHICAGO—(INS)—The proprietors of the Chicago stadium today were considering a suggestion that ringside seats be abolished to protect spectators from flying wrestlers. Two of them flew about during last night's wrestling show. After losing the first fall to Karol Zysko, a hefty gentleman from Boston known as Gus Sonnenberg picked up his opponent and hurled him out of the ring to the concrete floor. Because the Polish grappler was unable to return to the fray, Sonnenberg was awarded the third fall and the match.

A few minutes later Jack Sherry, a New York muscleman, grabbed Fred Meyer and threw a lateral pass to the newspaper in the front row. Meyer landed on a camera and lost the match.

REMEMBER?

Way back in the good old days when parched corn and apples and marshmallow roasts were the order of the evening—and we didn't dread All-Americans for there was only one team?

Way back when foreign heavyweights were novelties in the ring but unpronounceable wrestlers filled the incoming ships—and you could get into a gallery seat for just a dime?

Way back when girls started playing basketball and they wouldn't let the boys in to see them—and we wore shoes with copper tips and granddads wore felt boots all winter long?

Way back before Jack Dempsey started doing comebacks—Walter

Stage Is All Set for Big Ten Gridiron Tourney Tomorrow

Team Taking Tourney To Get Credit for One Full Game

By WEST PETERSON
CHICAGO—(INS)—While the Northwestern Wildcats are worrying over what may happen to them in the Purdue game Saturday, nearly 150 football players will be romping about Stagg field here tomorrow in the interest of charity.

The Big Ten college holders—Chicago, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana—will stage one of the most novel carnivals in local history. There will be three 30-minute encounters, with prospects that each will provide plenty of thrills.

The Western conference relief fund, to be split between seven states according to official population, will realize from $40,000 to $50,000 from the tournament. The size of the gate may depend to a great extent upon the weather. Advance sales have attracted 20,000 customers.

Teams Drill Today

All the invading eleven were in Chicago today, and some of them were scheduled to take short workouts on Stagg field.

To assure none of the games will end in a toss-up, arrangements have been made to award honors to the outfit which makes the most yardage. In the event of a tie score, Mrs. A. A. Stagg, wife of Chicago's coach, may have a hand in keeping tab on the contestants.

Indiana, according to the dope sheet, is the team most likely to emerge from the circus as winner. Chicago is given odds to overwhelm Iowa in the first tilt, and the Hoosiers are granted an edge over Illinois in the second encounter. There, according to the dopesters, Indiana will take its second victory of the season over the Maroons.

Counts One Game

The team winning the tournament will be given credit for winning one regulation game.

Each school will be represented by a squad of about 35 gridders. A number of regulars will be making their final collegiate bows. Among them Paul Stagg, son of the midway mentor.

Officials for the tournament, announced by Mr. John L. Griffith, conference athletic commissioner, are to be J. H. Nichols of Oberlin, referee; W. D. Knight, Dartmouth, umpire; Meyer Morton, Michigan, line judge; and Lee Daniels, Loyola, head linesman.

Late Dope on Football Teams

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—(INS)—Although still suffering from the injury which kept him out of last Saturday's game with Southern California, George Melinkovich, fullback, was back on Notre Dame's practice field today. Whether he will be in shape to participate in next Saturday's game with Army was a matter of doubt, however.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(INS)—A Kreszowski was being groomed at Minnesota's end position today to replace Brad Robinson, the regular end, in Saturday's charity game with Ohio State.

MADISON, Wis.—(INS)—Coach Glenn Thistlewaite today prepared to send his Wisconsin Badgers through their last practice of the season. Saturday the Badgers collide with Michigan at Ann Arbor in a charity game.

Coach Bresnahan of Hawkeye Track Fame Marries Tama Girl

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—A bachelorhood which Coach George T. Bresnahan had maintained during ten years as track and cross country mentor at the University of Iowa ended here today when he was married to Miss Dorothy Withington of Tama.

Bresnahan won six letters in track and cross country at the University of Wisconsin and served as assistant track coach there before coming here ten years ago. While here he has produced two Big Ten indoor track championship teams, several Olympic athletes, and is now serving as president of the National Collegiate Track Coaches association.

Miss Withington is the daughter of Mrs. Grace Withington of Tama and has attended Grinnell and Iowa State colleges.

Camp was the only All-American wide receiver in the regular season and a pink silk shirt with collar to match were fifty?

Way back when Centre College was famous—the Cincinnati Reds were world's champions—"My Buddy" was a new song—and "Shine on Harvest Moon" hadn't been dug out of the attic collection?

Way back when Walter Eckersall twice kicked five drops over in single games—when they were naging Jim Jeffries into doing a comeback—and Blanche Barks in "Girl of the Golden West"?

DEMPSEY FIGHT AWARD IN BOUT

Carnera and Campolo Will Clash Friday Night for Honor

NEW YORK—(INS)—The winner of the 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden here on Friday night between Primo Carnera and Vittorio Campolo will be in line for a fight with Jack Dempsey in the Garden's arena at Miami, Fla., next February if Dempsey wants the match, according to Jimmy Johnson, general manager of the Garden.

Johnson said however that before being eligible for a shot at Dempsey, the Carnera-Campolo winner first would be asked to fight Max Baer, California heavyweight, at the Garden in January. Baer, unsuccessful in an eastern invasion last winter, has attracted attention by his recent comeback on the coast.

Friday night's battle will carry an added incentive for Campolo, who craves recognition as Italy's best heavyweight. Vittorio was born in Italy and transplanted to the Argentine, and is rather fed up with the ballyhooing of Carnera as "champion of Italy." He has been waiting for three years to get a crack at the Venetian giant.

Carnera, who absorbed plenty of body punishment in his fight with Jack Sharkey, is vastly comforted by the thought that Campolo, being taller, likely will keep his blows higher.

FINISHES RACE ON BROKEN LEG

Iowa State Captain Expected Back in Next Six Weeks

AMES—(INS)—Iowa State college athletic and hospital officials were still unable today to understand how Earl Laberew of Indiana, captain of the Iowa State two mile team, was able to run a mile and half in a race at Lincoln, Nebraska, Saturday with a broken leg.

An X-ray picture showed that the large bone of the leg was fractured clear across.

Laberew said that he must have broken the bone at about the half mile mark, for from then on until the end of the race he felt intense pain but did not realize what had happened. Fortunately, the ends of the bone did not separate and his leg is apparently not any the worse for his finishing the race.

It is expected that he will be able to get back into training in about six weeks for the late winter and spring track season.

IMPROVEMENT

Hobart College football has become well known because of the long losing streak of the team. Last year Hobart scored but six points. This year three games were played before a point was made. Then Hobart scored 7 points against Union and 7 against Kenyon and then turned in two of the best performances in years in holding the next two teams to 2 to 0 scores.

Numerous winners who should become candidates for regular positions are: Kenneth Kimberlin, Marshalltown, Max Boller, Nevada, and Harold Clausen, Strawberry Point, forwards; Claire Kraft, Oelwein, center; and Raymond Johnson, La Porte City, and David Irvine, Geneseo, guards.

Allyn Stout, Cardinal pitcher who had a perfect pitching average last year, was schooled at Syracuse, Fort Smith, Greenville, Omaha, Danville, Laurel and Houston.

Lou Comiskey, new White Sox president, played football and baseball at De La Salle, until he got too fat. His avocations finally forced him to give up soil, too.

LOCALS CONCEDED SMALL CHANCE IN THURSDAY GAME

Team Is Weakened by Loss of Ray Utley And Allen Butts

No Muscatine high school football practice was held at Jefferson field Tuesday night as their coach, Bob Kinnan, was unable to report because of sickness. The team will go through its final light drill of the season tonight in preparation for Thursday's annual Turkey Day battle with the powerful Columbus Junction eleven.

Gloom is seen all over the local gridiron and pessimists are predicting the Columbus Junction team will have an easy time in downing the Muskies. Comparative scores would give the invaders the edge but Muscatine will fight hard in an attempt to mark up its third win of the season.

Musky Record Poor

Five conference defeats, one each at the hands of every other Little Six school, two non-conference wins and two non-conference defeats is the record of this year's team. Hope has been given up here and every local sport enthusiast is looking forward to the high school basketball season, which is always successful.

However, Coach Kinnan will do his best to turn in a victory over the highly touted Columbus Junction crew and if he succeeds he will be able to go about his basketball work with some-kind of a grin at last.

Capt. Ray Utley is through with football because of being scholastically ineligible. Allen Butts is also scholastically ineligible and with this guard and tackle out of the lineup, chances are small for a victory. Mel Horn, who has done manful work in the games this season, and who probably is the only Musky player who would have much chance of making the all-Little Six conference team, will be back in the lineup following a week of rest on the bench.

Several Changes Here

Columbus Junction will come here with an impressive record. The only team they have played that the Muskies have met also is West Liberty. Columbus Junction beat Liberty, 26 to 6 while the Muskies won from West Liberty, 19 to 0. The team is coached by Ralph Hibbs, a former Penn college athlete.

Probably the visiting backfield man who the Muskies will have to lay for is Lettis, clever halfback, who has been the big gun of the team all season. Gookin and Tiser have done much in the backfield also this season while Breneman, Mims and Smylie are the best in the line.

Several changes are due in the Musky lineup this week and just who will start is uncertain.

Plans for establishing an indoor rifle range in a portion of the rooms occupied by the Muscatine club on the fifth floor of the Hershey building, were tentatively adopted by the executive committee of the Muscatine Rifle club at a meeting held Tuesday night in the city hall.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the rooms in the Hershey building are available for that purpose, but before any final action is taken, every member of the club will be notified by mail of the committee's action and their views on the subject will be sought.

If definitely decided, the hall will be used as the winter range for regular practice of the members, which includes members of the police and sheriff forces in Muscatine. Practice on the outdoor range at Lowe Run continued last Sunday, and will continue during favorable weather. The rifle club now has a membership of 110.

ident, members of the commission were of the opinion that it was purely unavoidable. The car in which the bill for repairs figured, was one in which George Luckhardt rode to a fire, after summoning Erkson to drive him during the absence of Chief Brown from the city on a vacation. While stopping beside the first fire truck out of the station to give directions, a second truck driven by Price crashed into Erkson's car from the rear before it could come to a stop. Mr. Luckhardt was thrown to the ground forcibly and slightly hurt. Price said his foot was on the brake as he neared Erkson's car, but the lighter car was able to stop quicker and the crash resulted. Future accident involving fire trucks, the commission decided, must be reported direct to the commission by the fire department heads, in order that prices can be secured on repair work, it being the opinion of the commissioners that the amount of repairs could have been considerably less.

Permission to hold the annual firemen's ball on Christmas night, but without any advance sale of tickets or solicitation of funds, was granted by the commission to members of the fire department. The firemen asked that they be permitted to hold the dance, an annual affair, by selling tickets only at the door on the night of the dance. Money realized from the dance will be turned over to the firemen's relief fund.

Upon recommendations from Chief Brown, the commission will request the council to purchase six pairs of boots and nine rubber coats for the fire department. Fire Chief Brown and Police Chief Mark Taylor will confer with the county attorney to determine whether the city shall be required to pay chauffeur licenses for men who drive city vehicles.

HOLSTEIN BULL CALF IS SOLD AT HIGH PRICE

Norwalk Breeders Get Ton Price of $220 At Annual Sale

WATERLOO—(Special)—An unusually large crowd of nearly 400 men gathered to witness the selling of Holsteins at the annual sale of the Iowa Holstein Breeder's association at Waterloo Monday.

It was evident that a good many of these breeders came to see how the animals would sell, rather than to buy.

The cattle were consigned by 18 Iowa breeders, and the sale was managed by F. C. Barney, secretary of the Iowa Holstein Breeder's association.

Bulls Average $109

The 48 head sold for $4,237.50, or an average of $109.23 for the 13 bulls and $80.50 for the 35 cows. Included with the cows were 15 heifers under 2 years which averaged $57.63. The cows two years old and over, averaged $96.10.

Str Papoose Della, 9-month-old bull calf consigned by Hargrove and Arnold, Norwalk, topped the sale at the bid of $220, made by H. J. Romph, Marion.

The second high individual, another bull, consigned by Maytag Dairy farms, Newton, was sold to L. C. Lenth, Elkader, for $215.

Placed at National

This bull, Nicholas Pietertje Ormsby 9th, has an enviable record in the show ring, including fourth prize three-year-old at the National dairy show this year.

Elsie Hengerveld Posch, another consignment of the Maytag firm, brought the top price for cows when she sold to Roger Manfull, Trear, for $190.

IOWA ROOSEVELT BOOM PERSONAL, SULLIVAN CLAIMS

WATERLOO—(Special)—John T. Sullivan, prominent Democratic leader, referring to a recent statement of Clyde L. Herring, Des Moines, said Tuesday that there was no cause for criticizing the expression of personal opinions of the Democratic state central committee to the effect that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York, was favored for nomination for president.

Sullivan explained that "there was no endorsement of any particular man, but merely an expression of personal opinions by members of the committee."

"Members are entitled to their personal opinions, right or wrong, and to the right to express them," Sullivan added.

Why does inconstant man accuse woman of inconstancy?

GRAVEL LAYING BEGUN TUESDAY

Work Is Centered in Three Townships In County

Gravel maintenance work including the placing of gravel on existing roads in every township in Muscatine county, was started Tuesday by the Keleg Construction company of Marshalltown, which was recently awarded a general contract for the work.

The work now being done is in the southwest portion of the county and includes Fruitland, Seventy-Six and Cedar townships. Due to the muddy condition of the roads caused by the recent rains, roads nearest to the county gravel pit are the present scene of operations.

The Krege company is also placing gravel on newly built county roads. The outfit includes twenty gravel trucks and the contract calls for completion of the work by Jan. 1. The contract price for the work is $1.29, delivered, which, according to County Engineer F. P. G. Halbfax, is the lowest gravel contract price ever obtained here.

Why do you permit it or sanction it, without investigation?

Question 13: Are you sincere in your motives or are you merely seeking political advantages and publicity. If not, then why deny the farmers an investigation before going ahead with more squandering of the tax payers' money, the killing of the farmers' cows, the arresting of our best farm citizens, the disgrace of it all plus the public display of the influences being used upon departments of state.

On behalf of the farmers of Iowa and America, we ask your answers to these questions, without reluctance, evasion or attempts at propaganda—the public and all await YOUR ANSWERS.

mally dirty. They have no where to play except the mud road and thinly scattered refuse dump that spreads from house to house.

Most of the smaller children were barefooted, but their shortage of clothing did not stop there. Two that I watched playing under the timber piles of their front porch had on little threadbare coats and nothing else at all.

I later learned that the majority pay an average of $8 a month for these shacks, without, of course, light, coal or water.

Thugs Follow Writer

For some miles, through evarts and round black mountain camp, my car was followed at a distance by another. My driver identified the two men in it as guards, or, as they are colloquially known, "thugs." Their quiet following made him nervous. His wife's brother had been in "the troubles" and to him the mine guards were dangerous enemies to be avoided at all costs. He refused to stop anywhere while they were in sight and urged me to conceal my pocket camera.

Eventually the guards passed us and went on.

The following day I spent in the camps themselves, hearing their troubles from the other women, what their men are paid, and how they cling together to protect their children and each other from starvation.

Smart SHOPPING

"How good is it?"
That's it!

ABOUT anything and everything they buy, smart shoppers like to ask one question—"How good is it?"

Chesterfield welcomes smokers who buy their cigarettes that way.

OUR tobacco buyers are smart shoppers, too. They "shop" for the ripest, mildest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows. And they won't take anything else.

"How good" are Chesterfields? Well, consider their blending.

Blended and cross-blended...not merely mixed together. Blended first by crops and countries...then cross-blended again and again...to produce a flavor and aroma that are Chesterfield's alone.

That's how we get that better taste...that's why Chesterfields are milder. Even the paper they're rolled in is the whitest, cleanest and purest that money can buy.

And the package...clean, bright, fresh-looking...see how easily it opens, yet how tightly it's sealed.

OPEN a package. Note the aroma...delicious...foretaste of pleasure ahead.

Now—pull out a Chesterfield...round, firm, well-filled.

"How good is it?" Light up...then you tell us!

Milder? Right! Taste better? You bet they do! They're pure, too—and they certainly do satisfy!

Good...they've got to be good! There's value here. We know, because we put it in...and you'll smoke it out with every one you light.

"Sure I shop for cigarettes—Chesterfields satisfy me"
